

Buller George Turkington

1 April 2007

Dear Sir

Changes at Buller George Engineers

We are very pleased to announce changes that are taking place at Buller George Engineers. You will notice the new name for our company, Buller George Turkington Ltd. The new name reflects some exciting developments in our practice.

John Buller is easing back from his role as Managing Director and will move to an advisory and specialist consultancy role. John has been employed by the company since 1970 and has been a Director since 1975. John turns 60 this week but will continue working full time in his new role.

David Turkington has been with us for almost a decade. Having been a Director of Buller George Engineers since 2002, the change in name reflects David's increasing contribution to our Practice.

On 1 April 2007 Buller George Turkington Ltd commences trading as Consulting Structural and Civil Engineers. The directors of this new company will be Stuart George and David Turkington. Buller George Engineers Ltd will continue to trade until completion of all current professional services contracts and obligations. We have organized this change in such a way as to avoid any disruption to any of our current projects.

We have some exciting projects lined up for the next few years, including some very tall high rise buildings, major shopping centre projects, some premium office buildings, resort developments, and major retirement villages throughout New Zealand. With the large number of projects either underway or about to start, we can assure you that it's business as usual at Buller George Turkington Ltd. The same level of service and quality that you've come to expect over the years is still our focus.

John, David and I thank you for your support and look forward to our continuing relationship with you.

Yours sincerely

Stuart George
Director
